Digital Criminal Proceedings in practice: What Works?

25.09.2026 Helsinki

As criminal courts across Europe increasingly rely on digital technologies for remote communication, important questions arise about fairness and effective participation. These questions are at the heart of the conference “Digital Criminal Proceedings in Practice: What Works?”, jointly organised by the E-ViVi-consortium and the Virtual Criminal Justice Network.

This conference brings together researchers and criminal justice professionals to explore how digital technologies are reshaping criminal proceedings. Drawing on findings from the E-ViVi project, the event focuses on practical experiences, best practices and future directions for fair and effective digital criminal justice in Europe.
